

Clark County School Universal Breakfast Schools

Clark County School District began a Universal Breakfast Program for Title One schools during the 2011-2012 School Year. Students are served a free breakfast after the first bell in the cafeteria every day. If the school is not a Provision 2 or CEP school then the district must correctly identify the student status (free, reduced or paid) as the student receives the meal and the district will claim by the student's status for reimbursement. For Provision 2 schools and CEP schools the students are counted as they receive the meal. Students are not identified by status but counted and the claim is based on established percentages either by the base year for Provision 2 or direct certification percentage for CEP.

Participation increased significantly with the implementation of the Universal Breakfast Program. Below is the list of schools on the Universal Breakfast Program. Some of those schools are also on the Provision 2 or will be part of the CEP schools.
