Ostaff shall not manage residents' personal financial affairs.  The Operator of the home must ensure they are abiding by local code and adhering to local licensing requirements relating to the business operation.  Incidents must be reported to the local authorities and maintained in a log to be made available for review		Mark: Local code varies by municipality-it has worked well with transitional housing (some of the language was from NARR) thinks: It will work well with Recovery housing also. Walk throughs include general safety. For example a door wasn't opening in a transitional house but it was caught and addressed quickly.	Sean talked about other things required (NARR) for instance overdose training for staff. Mark agrees this is important. Agrees this type of language should be included (not having naloxone on hand and staff not trained could be a legal issue). Sean: NARR suggests laundry on site, appropriate space for residents, food storage, adequate congregating spaces. Sean: gender identity, CPR, ways to be more culturally competent as far as gender identity Sean: training for house managers, staff? Cultural competency for example. Core competencies of running a home required? Sean brought up a resident handbook to explain policies and procedures in the house along with a code of ethics signed by staff. Operators and residents need to be aware of the residents rights. Sean: Ensuring safeguards for environment of illicit substance free. Side discussion regarding MAT:  Side discussion regarding transitional housing versus recovery housing:		for people living in the home so they can still get treatment if necessary (outside of the recovery home). Sean thinks we need to define this more. Ari thinks this should be dependent on if someone is already attending services 3 times a week (for example) it would be hard for them to participate in required activities. Dr. Corona: Has patients having a hard	Mark: Recovery housing is for people in a certain level of recovery. Mark says we have to be careful what they are doing at the house related to treatment.  Sean brought up training for staff-keep it broad. Maybe we can use the same for the evaluation tool to give flexibility as things change based on evidence based practices.  Mark: already have criteria that they cannot be denied if they are on MAT.  Dr. Corona: Repercussions need to be clearly defined right now. If there is a complaint it needs to come from the patient.
